

Summary

A dental polymer film is described, which is suitable for coating and sealing tooth surfaces, in particular in the approximal space, and characterised in that it contains polymerisable groups.